

Energy is what we do, but it's people we do it for.

Clarus is one of New Zealand's largest energy groups. Whether it's transmission, distribution, supply or storage of energy, the companies within Clarus service over half a million homes and businesses* of all sizes around New Zealand.

While the majority of our existing assets and investments remain in the traditional natural gas and LPG sector, we are also looking to the future. We are investing in innovative renewable gas technologies such as biogas upgrading and hydrogen blending, even a large solar farm. These technologies have the potential to play a role for the country long-term in the ongoing transition to a lower emissions energy system.

Gas is a critical part of our energy future

Clarus is committed to exploring more sustainable energy solutions. We see gas as a critical part of the immediate and long-term future; providing New Zealand homes, businesses, and industry with the energy needed to thrive. As the country decarbonises over the coming years and decades the way we use and produce gas will change but gas will continue to support a reliable and affordable energy system.

NOW

Gas will continue to be an effective source of energy that many people and industries rely on today and in the near future.

SOON

Gas will continue to be relied on in the coming years to help energy-intensive industries transition onto cleaner forms of energy.

FUTURE

We're working on renewable gas solutions for the ongoing future so that gas - whatever kind that turns out to be - remains a reliable energy source for many years to come.

Firstgas and Rockgas are part of the Clarus group of businesses.

Firstgas connects over 300,000 homes and businesses with natural gas through its gas distribution and high-pressure transmission network. This essential infrastructure supports New Zealand's economy.

Rockgas is New Zealand's largest LPG retail supplier, providing fast and reliable service through a national network of branches and franchises to over 140,000 customers.
